“ Dear family of Mr. Sewell, I am so sorry for your loss!! Please accept my sincere condolences. Also as a dedicated police supporter, I want to apologize to you for having to read through the vile filth that people have posted here. It's disgusting. I am so sorry. There's no need for you to continue reading the rest of what I am writing.

To the other commenters here, you ought to be ashamed of yourselves. Mr. Sewell is deceased and as such, he cannot read your horrible remarks. What you're doing is making certain that each & every family member has to read through your disgusting comments when they stumble upon this tribute wall. Hang your heads in shame! Mr. Sewell did what he did. He paid for it with his life. There's no justification for taunting the decedent's family. They are grieving. I don't know any of these people but as a very strong & solid police supporter I feel inclined to speak up. Say what you will about me, I won't respond back but just know that comments like what you've written here are exactly the kinds of things that makes people hate police even more. The stuff you say, you're endangering other police by contributing to the LEO/civilian division in our society. SHAME ON YOU!!

“ It's amazing that there are no tributes here from family and friends, just comments from people who saw the bodycam video of his last moments roasting him.

Says a lot about his character and his impact on the community.

“ I recently met Mr Sewell briefly. He welcomed me and 8 unexpected friends in a place in the trees, by the water. We were able to successfully help him in exactly the way he requested. For this, I am grateful. We raise a toast to his memory, of our shared success. Blessing on all he left behind, far too soon.

Kinda messed up how people go to his obit to roast him. Classless. Maybe he wasn't your kind of guy but his family did nothing to you. RIP Mr Sewell. I hope things are better for you on the other side than they were here.

His family was responsible for raising a productive, law-abiding member of society. They failed, and society suffered as a result. So the did do something to me.
