

Frances Juanita Starms

July 14, 1914 - February 9, 2012

No obituary found for this tribute.

Tribute Wall

“ On half of the Bishop family thank you for your teachings, spiritual leadership and encouragement. We Love you. To her your family and friends we continue to keep you in prayer##imported-begin##Walter, Linda, Sierra, Ricky Bishop##imported-end##

---

February 27, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ r.i.p mrs. starms you are a granny to me i really am going to miss you r.i.p to you i'll miss you so much i remember i took a picture with you when i was in kindergarten.miss you i have all my memorys in my heart##imported-begin##kendrick moore##imported-end##

---

February 22, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ Ms. Starms, thank you for all you gave of yourself to those within the community. You helped to mold the lives of so many and we are forever grateful to you. May God welcome you home with open arms saying to you "Well done daughter, well done".##imported-begin##Deana Liggans-McGhee##imported-end##

---

February 18, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ RIP Ms.Starms, I can remember you when i was in the 1st or 2nd grade and saying your poems##imported-begin##Shaun Liederbach##imported-end##

---

February 17, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ Mrs. Starms was an early role model for me and other young women in the 60's. Her work, with her husband, and the North Central YMCA Y's Menettes was exemplary in securing scholarships for children for summer camp. As a teacher, she exuded professionalism and sensitivity in making each child important, capable and eager to learn. As a community thought leader she shared her wisdom, visions and influences. Her many gifts are the foundation of much of Black Milwaukee. She is forever admired, remembered and will be greatly missed. MCJ awarded her the 2011 Academy of Legends Award. She earned it! Our heartfelt sympathy to the family. Dr. and Mrs. Pattillo##imported-begin##Patricia Pattillo##imported-end##

---

February 16, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ My mother, Florence Abrams, always enjoyed reading to children, which is why her children and grandchildren learned to read at a very young age. After my brother was killed in Vietnam in 1968, my mother became involved in the early days of Headstart. I vividly remember her speaking so highly of a "Mrs. Starms". They were about the same age, as my mother would be 99 if she were still alive. And I do believe that this volunteer work helped my mother during those early times of grieving our family's loss. Reading to children lit up her days and gave her renewed purpose. She continued to do this in other venues for many years. So Mrs. Starms had a positive influence on adults as well as children. My thoughts are with her family at this difficult time.##imported-begin##Ellen Abrams Blankenship##imported-end##

---

February 16, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ Mrs. Starms was an inspriation to so many people in her many years of teaching. We were involved with Frances Starms Early Childhood Center. My daughter was a student there from K3-K5. She thoroughly enjoyed her stay there. I began as a parent volunteer and after two years began working at the school in the K3/K4 classroom. I enjoyed being a part of the staff and seeing Mrs. Starms whenever she would come to join us for events, field trips and programs, as well as just visiting. It was always special when the children were able to have their photos taken with her. I still have my daughters and mine. My daughter is now 22. She always made people feel good if their day was a little down. Thank you Mrs. Starms for your many years of smiles, friendship and music. You will be missed.

Lots of Love and Respect,

Donna Tess##imported-begin##Donna & Lillianne Tess##imported-end##

---

February 15, 2012 at 12:00 AM

“ Mrs. Starms was a member of the Lee School family for many years. When you'd walk into our school, you would be greeted by the sweet sound of Mrs. Starms playing the piano. It was the best way to start any day! Mrs. Starms always made sure she taught our children not only about their heritage, but to be proud of that heritage. She was truly an angel; one who loved everyone and one whom everyone loved. Though there is comfort in knowing Mrs. Starms has taken her rightful place in heaven, she will truly be missed.##imported-begin##Kris Bertram##imported-end##

---

February 13, 2012 at 12:00 AM