Louise Brown was born on July 28th, 1943 to the union of John Brown Sr (Big Daddy) & Sarah Wiseman Brown (Sug) in Web, Mississippi. Louise graduated from West Division High School in Milwaukee, WI in 1962.

Louise Brown is the bearer of a proud river & noble bloodline rich in her African/Native American Heritage. She was the youngest of her siblings. Her nickname was "Baby Sister". Louise's grandmother Anna Armour Wiseman Ratliff, -aka- "Big Mama", was a wise and noble woman who passed on the African tradition by enlightening us with our family history. It is said that Louise's roots can be traced back to runaway slaves Zachariah and Native American Mattie Armour. It is said that Zachariah is a descendent of the Brotherton Tribe consisting of Cherokee Indians and African slaves.

Louise had a very strong work ethic. She worked at Walgreens for 26 years where she received employee of the month & retired in 2011. She was celebrated for her 15th and 20th years of service by Walgreens.

Louise was also an outstanding softball player. She played short-stop for the Warrens Untouchables, also known as the Warriors in her hey-day. One season they compiled a 46-4-1 record and won two straight women's M softball titles. Louise loved all genres of music, especially R&B & Jazz. She loved attending live performances such as Frankie Beverly & Maze, Angela Winbush, The Isley Brothers, The Whispers and so forth.

Louise's father was rich in African Noble Heritage. It's said that John Brown

Sr. is a descendant of a great African Chief. With the strength of her heritage, Louise passed on to the waiting arms of her ancestors. She will be embraced by her parent's: John Brown Sr & Sarah Wiseman. Her Siblings: Ann Brown Bell, Elizabeth Brown Moore, John Brown Jr and Robert Brown Sr (Irene). Nephews: Sherman Bell and Emmett (Sylvia) Brown; niece Hozine Brown, and Sisters-in-law Katie Brown and Delores Coffee will be there to welcome her.

Louise leaves to cherish her memory with her son, Joseph Brown and her grandson Moriarity Brown-Griffin. The Grandparent's recently celebrated their grandson's marriage to a wonderful woman by the name of Victoria Brown-Griffin on May 26,2018. Moriarity's grandfather, Joseph Griffin continued to be a friend, a co-parent and a co-grandparent with Louise sharing their love for their son and grandson.
