Ronnie entered this world boldly and brightly, with his twin brother, Roger Robbins. As twins, Ronnie and Roger had a special bond. They enjoyed carpentry, fishing, and fellowshiping. They shared a once in a lifetime brotherly love, and Ronnie will be greatly missed.

Linda noticed Ronnie too. After a setup from friends, Ronnie and Linda went on a date. Three weeks later, they moved in together. They remained inseparable until Ronnie's death.

Ronnie was beloved by many. You'd catch him at every family event with a camera. He was the picture man. His ability to capture a moment will be appreciated for generations to come. Ronnie was the true life of the party. You'd always catch him with a smile and a warm welcome.

"Uncle Ronnie" to his many nieces and nephews, was known for a good laugh and a fun fish fry. In his leisure, Ronnie loved fishing and cooking for those he loved.
