At ten years of age, she accepted Christ as her Savior and was united with Friendship Missionary Baptist Church under the leadership of pastor JC Hughes where she served as a faithful member of the church choir.

In 1977 Sandra met her beloved husband, London Scott whom she loved and cared for, they later married. Their union was blessed with four children. Three sons, Timothy, Christopher and Stephen; and a step-son, London Scott, Jr.

Her employment then ventured into the health care field where she had a loving passion and great concern for children and the elderly.

In her leisure, she loved to cook and sing. She was an excellent cook, she imitated the cooking style from her mother Bessie Wilder. She would cook many of the family reunion and holiday dinners. Sandra had a beautiful singing voice. the leadership of her voice gathered young children around the neighborhood to hear her sing gospel songs.

Whenever someone in the family took ill, Sandra was the first in line volunteering her time and services to help whomever was ailing at that time. Despite having some medical issues of her own she would never turn down anyone who needed her help. She never complained or whined about herself, she always wanted to make sure that those around her were o.k.
